Honorable Judge Brian M. Cogan, I am writing you in the most amiable and respectful [way possible] [to let you know] the following: attorney Jose Israel Encinosa sent word to me 3 weeks ago, that you had authorized the Government allow Encinosa to visit me, speak with me by phone and write to me. However, his telephone calls haven't been permitted yet; the attorney wrote me a letter several weeks ago, but I haven't received the 2 letters that attorney Encinosa wrote. The attorney has been fighting for 10 months for authorization for visits [and] telephone call(s). I thought that since you had now ordered that attorney Encinosa be permitted to visit me and call me on the phone, but, so far, the attorney hasn't been allowed [to do this]. Forgive me for bothering you again. Once again, about a month and a half ago I wrote asking that you please authorize attorney Encinosa his petition to the Government to have them authorize attorney Encinosa's visit to me.

I thank you for having ordered that the attorney be allowed to visit me and speak with me by phone, and once again I'm bothering you [with the request] that you order the Government to allow attorney visits and telephone calls, since the attorney is vital for me.

Thanking you in advance, Joaquin Guzman L.

Translator's note: The original letter contains only the most basic punctuation marks and is riddled with misspellings and grammatical oddities. To make sense of the message, I have supplied the punctuation I felt would be useful and have added words, in brackets. The spelling of the attorney's name is an estimate. My apologies if it is incorrect.
